BILL HART'S ACCUSER FOUND IN BROOKLINE

STUDENT IN RAISE FOR BOAT IS DYING

Jaques' Skull Fractured Boxing With an Instructor at Y. M. C. A.

A jolt on the chin from the gloved fist of Frank Alexander, boxing instructor at the Y. M. C. A., floored Armand Jaques, Jr., an entering student at Northeastern University.

Jaques, a novice at the field art, fell backwards, striking on the side of his head. For a moment he lay still, then dragged himself to his feet and was helped upstairs by Alexander and his assistant, C. P. Thayer. Then he collapsed.

He is unconscious at the City Hospital with a fractured skull and other injuries, and physicians fear he may not recover.

SEEK ALEXANDER.

Alexander, who is also instructor at the Fessenden School in West Newton, and Eugene Adonis, another student, the only witnesses of the fight, are being sought today for questioning. Police of the nearby Cushing station are investigating.

Girl Tells Her Love Story

The Boston American yesterday told exclusively the details of the story of the mysterious Boston girl who, on the eve of the divorce action of Winifred Westcott Hart against her famous "Two-Gun" husband, "Bill" Hart, charged the film actor with being the father of her child.

Today the American reveals the identity of the girl and begins publication of her story.

By HAROLD R. HALL.

The Boston girl, who yanked the skeleton out of Bill Hart's closet, and charged that he is the father of her nameless child—her child that he has repudiated—is Miss Elizabeth MacCauley of Brookline.

She has told me her complete story. She has shown me the letters in which are revealed the story of an inexperienced girl who placed a popular public figure on a pedestal—made a god of him—and found that his feet were clay.

In many ways the story of Elizabeth MacCauley is similar to the story of Dolores Dixon, recently printed in this newspaper.

WIFE PUTS BAR TRUCKS ON STATE HIGHWAYS

"Probation" Follows Confession; Stotesbury to Offer Reward for Slayer

Philadelphia, March 28.—John Kearsley Mitchell was put on probation today by his wife, Mrs. Frances Stotesbury Mitchell, dictator of Philadelphia society and a proud daughter of Edward T. Stotesbury, the multi-millionaire partner of J. P. Morgan.

Without the least equivocation, it is said, Mitchell confessed to her in full his relations with Dorothy Kearsley, or King, with whom he had a midnight tryst shortly before the death of his wife.

PROBE DEATH OF WEST END POLICEMAN

Immediate investigation will be made into the death today of Patrolman Robert Powers, 27 years old, of Joy street station. Powers, who lived at 173 West Brookline street, died less than two hours after he had been taken from the station house by brother officers. He went out on patrol duty in the vicinity of the State House today feeling normal. When he returned from his tour of duty he complained of pains in the stomach.

MILLION LOSS IN OIL FIRE

New Orleans, March 28.—The refining plant of the Sinclair Oil Co. at Merreux was damaged today by fire. The loss was placed at $1,000,000. The fire started when lightning struck one of 50 oil tanks. The fire spread rapidly.

ESCAPED ROBBERS TAKEN IN GUN FIGHT

Atlanta, Ga., March 28.—(By International News Service)—Gerald Chapman and Frank Grey, desperadoes, who escaped yesterday from the Atlanta Federal penitentiary, were captured today after a gun battle with the pursuing posse in a dense woodland near Athens, Ga.

Chapman was one of the New York million-dollar mail robbers who also was dazed by the printer's ink. He was captured by the printer's ink. He was captured by the printer's ink.

WOMAN OF CULTURE.

The fascination that the movie scene exercised over the Brookline girl was not the sort that might be expected when the girl in the case is untalented, uneducated, Elizabeth MacCauley is the daughter of a lawyer, who was formerly a prominent lawyer and head of one of the first families of Wilmington, Del.

Her father, March, was formerly Dean of Women of St. Louis University.

Her brother, Major Samuel White MacCauley, is a prominent Chicago engineer.

She herself is one of the most respected graduates of Wellesley College. When she was an editor of the senior publication of the college, Le-penda, she wrote articles speaking of the demoralizing effect of the movies. She ended at the tales of young girls who were hypnotized by the lure of the screen.

Russia Defies the World
A Sorry Butterfly
Old Man—Young Horse
Slave Trade Revised
—By Arthur Brisbane—

SIKORSKI, PRIME MINISTER of Poland, officially warns Russia not to execute the Russian Catholic Archbishop and other Roman Catholic priests sentenced by the Bolshevik government to be executed within forty-eight hours. There is in that a possibility of another war. Poland is much wrought up over the confiscation of the Russian Catholic priests who are Poles. They were guaranteed by the Russian government freedom in the exercise of their religion, which presumably meant freedom from confiscation of church treasures.

THE TRIAL of the Roman Catholic Archbishop and other priests, as Walter Duranty describes it in the New York Times, was most dramatic. The priests of the Roman Catholic Church did not submit as meekly as the priests of the Greek Catholic Church have done. To the public prosecutor one of the accused, Father Kochewy, said: "First, last and always, I am a priest, and as such recognize no mundane authority. You may do with me as you will, but I make appeal to a higher tribunal than yours."

In America, long ago, missionaries among the Indians talked in that way to savages by whom they knew they would presently be burned and otherwise tortured.

THE BOLSHEVIST PROSECUTOR demanded the death penalty for the defendant priest and his archbishop, saying:

"I demand the death penalty. We decide to accept the views of the Catholic law, that a Roman Catholic priest is responsible only to the Pope and able to ignore national laws."

In spite of the soviet prosecutor's fury, the correspondent predicts that the death penalty will not be inflicted upon the Roman Catholic priest. You may see the condemned men's lives, but it is not likely. The Bolshevik defy the world and its public opinion.

HOW about the threats or opinions of outside nations is shown by her threat to blow up the Japanese cruiser Nisaka. The Vladivostok harbor, unless her captain stops sending wireless messages to Japanese merchants.

MISS "DOT" KING, described by reporters as "The Broadway Butterfly," received several presents from one man, but before another man informed her, probably to get for blackmail purposes letters that the first man had written to her. The last presents included a one thousand dollar bond, some jewelry, $700 in cash.

The dead "butterfly" the day before had said to one of her friends: "I feel sorry for poor girls that have to work." She would not feel so sorry for herself as she could read the newspaper telling of her own sad and tragic end. There are many things worse than "being compelled to work."

Announces the Jailing and Interning of 10,000 Republicans in Ireland
Court Turns Policewoman Down in Alleged Mashing Case for Lack of Evidence

Duffin, March 28.—Ten thousand Republican prisoners are now held in jails and internment camps by the Free State. It was revealed today by President William Cosgrave in a speech before the Daily Express.

President Cosgrave warned ruling parties against what he termed "unwise exuberance." He said that the Free State was making progress toward restoration of order.

Several Republicans were wounded. An unsuccessful attempt was made to turn the home of Seamus Guinness at Fox Rock.

Fugitive Irish Officer Held in Theatre Murder
Dublin, March 28.—Lieutenant Frank Teeling, a National Army officer, whose escape from jail was under death sentence for alleged complicity in Dublin's "Red Sunday" massacre in 1921, was one of the greatest sensations of the Black and Tan regime in Ireland, was a central figure in a scene at the "Theatre Royal."

In the course of the performance a shot was heard and a member of the civic force fell wounded in the chest. He died soon after. Lieutenant Teeling was arrested in connection with the mysterious occurrence.

Irish Taxpayers Stirred by Big Free State Budget
London, March 28.—The Irish people are disturbed over the amount of the government's estimates for the next fiscal year as announced by President Cosgrave in the Dail on Monday, says a Dublin dispatch in the Times.

The correspondent estimates that the total estimate of £42,110,000 exceeds by £10,000,000 the maximum cost of governing all of Ireland under British rule. The necessity for a large army under the present circumstances is not disputed, but the estimate of £10,000,000 is considered high.

He announced today, when he declared that this far he had not formed any plans for the administration of the bureau, the appointment became effective Monday. His first act will be to confer with the War Department.

WOMAN REFUSED TO GO TO COURT
Judge David A. Loring refused to grant a warrant against Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer, accused of "mashing" by Policewoman Irene C. Lynch.

The policewoman had only one witness against Ulmer's, without corroborating witnesses.

She told the court that she was sitting at a table in a room near Washington and Winter streets, and she put herself in a position where Ulmer might come against her, if he sought to, and that he did so.

She did not have in court the two women whom she said Ulmer had mashed.

FIND COAL OF INDEPENDENT CO. IS O. K.

D. B. Woolley, city assessor of weights and measures, explained today action taken by his department in regard to a shipment of coal at a small freight yard, billed to the Independent Coal Co. of No. 209 Columbus Avenue.

"The Independent Coal Company," Mr. Woolley said, "notified our department of the arrival at a freight yard of two carloads of coal billed to them. They were apparently suspicious of the nature of the coal. We put on a restraining order to prevent this coal being moved. Today two of my agents will take samples of this coal for analysis. The coal which this company had at its place of business was all right."

Mr. Woolley and some of his men, with State coal investigators, made a series of trips to South End coal yards Monday and Tuesday, or not until restraining order to prevent them being moved, certain lots of coal pending official analysis of samples of the coal by State Chemist Herman C. Lybourn.

It was reported that that time that among lots of coal subjected to such return or restraining order were fifty tons in the yard of the Independent Coal Company. It now seems as explained by Mr. Woolley, that all the coal in the company yard was all right and that the restraining order was on coal in a freight yard of which the company was suspicious and of which it had notified the dealer's department.

SEIZE HOSTAGES IN WOUNDING OF FRENCHMAN

Eisen, March 25 (By International News Service).—Two German hostesses, a physician and a merchant, were seized by the French at Metz today, after a French officer had been fired upon and slightly wounded.

Paris, March 25 (By the Associated Press).—While various interpretations may be put upon this note the Separations Commission is meeting in Germany in connection with the foreign currency loan issue, the correct one, according to some of the best informed circles, is that it holds in substance that there is no question of the German government's right to offer the loan, but there does exist a question as to the security it may give.

The text of the note, prepared by Sir John Bradbury of England, and Mr. Deloroux of Belgium, calls attention to Article 24 of the Treaty of Versailles, defining priority rights in reparation and emphasizing the commission makes express reference to the loan of its right of priority against any funds which may be assigned by the German government to the payment of interest or the payment of capital to the loan in question, more particularly if the loan itself is not applied to the discharge or reparation annuities.

LONG WARMS OF BIG INCREASE IN TAXES

Stonfield, March 25.—A warning of increased taxation in Massachusetts was given by Henry F. Long, chairman of Corporations and Taxation, before the Hampshire County Assesses' Association today. In making economy in municipal expenditures.

"The theory that the people themselves levy the taxes is in some ways a beautiful fiction," he said.

"In making the levy is made by a committee for the county, which is controlled by a handful of politicians. Then the county make the mistake that they have made when its competitors for money are in the hands of the people."

18,000 MORE MILL WORKERS GET INCREASE

movement for higher wages began. Several mills in the South, however, announced a 10 per cent. increase a few days ago.

The action by the American Company was unexpected at this time as its plants were among the hardest hit by the big textile strike of last year in protest against the increase from 45 to 54 hours in the working week.

Nashua, N. H., March 25.—(Nashua.)—The action by the American Company was unexpected at this time as its plants were among the hardest hit by the big textile strike of last year in protest against the increase from 45 to 54 hours in the working week.

turing Company here this afternoon read as follows:

"There will be an advance and re-adjustment of wages in the mills of the Nashua Manufacturing Company to take effect Monday, April 30, 1923." Four thousand operatives are employed.

In accordance with their usual custom the agents refrained from comment.

Lewiston, March 27.—The American Textile Mending Company, employing 115 persons announced a wage increase of 15 per cent. to take effect April 30.

The Methuen Company, makers of cotton goods, announced that reports that they had granted a wage advance were incorrect. No increase has been made by that company.

The report arose out of the fact that the Methuen Yarn Mills, a small plant, had announced a 15 per cent. advance.

MITCHELL PUT ON PROBATION BY WIFE

model was murdered on March 11 last.

The conference was held in his home in the extensive Biltmore square section, where they had resided from Mr. Stodolny's $5,000,000 country place, "Whitman Hall."

It was learned that Mr. Stodolny had adopted a "hands off" policy.

Stodolny was expected to offer a substantial reward through the New York police for the apprehension of the murderer of Dorothy King.

His New York efforts had already indicated that Stodolny would offer the reward, and the inference was that Stodolny was in a non-indulgent attitude of any suspicion of murder, Mitchell being the last person known to have been with his father-in-law, who is understood to have counseled his daughter to be lenient and steadfast in standing by her husband.

STODOLNY NEUTRAL.

Mitchell used a double to board the Stodolny car at Washington as a ruse to protect him as he was anxiously awaiting the arrival of the train at East Side. He also used doubles in the same way at Richmond, Va., and Baltimore. The ruse at Washington, as in the other cities, fooled scores of newspaper men and photographers.

When the train finally stopped at East Side fifty detectives formed an aisle between the private car and a string of freight cars in the yards.

Suddenly from behind a cattle car a group of six men, Mitchell was in the center. He was in a moment aboard the private car.

Daughterly Blackmail Named to Pecora

New York, March 27.—Vital evidence in the great Dorothy King murder mystery was supplied to acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora by the House newspaper.

He was given the name of the man who sought to threaten Major Dexter M. Daugherty, son of Attorney-General Harry Daugherty, on Thursday, March 22, as told exclusively in this newspaper. Major Daugherty has been summoned by Pecora as a witness.

Mr. Pecora said:

"This throws a new and peculiar light upon the case. This man apparently was an close to Dorothy King that he was in a position to know even friends of the stripes of Major Daugherty. We shall question him and others directly connected with him."

Discarding the theory of burglary, possible motives for the death of the model now are:

1.—Blackmail on the part of those who knew of her association with J. K. Mitchell, or "Marion," blackmail either by a close friend or by others in a position to bear in directly at her alliance with Mitchell.

2.—Her murder was deliberately planned by a man who had worried her and who was fearful of disclosure she was in a position to make about her relations with him, and other men.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

USE MULTISIFIED

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Multisified in a cup of water with a little warm water, then massage the hair with water and rub the Multisified in. It will make an abundance of lather and cleanse the scalp and hair thoroughly. The hair grows more easily and remains every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair grows quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and in good condition.

You can get Multisified coconut oil shampoo and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisified.

TAYLOR PUTS BLAME ON MARCINO

to be taken as a fugitive from justice. He maintained that he was innocent of any wrongdoing in connection with the theft of $20,000 worth of bonds from the bank early in February.

Joseph H. Marcino, he said, who placed him as president of the Warren Bank at a weekly salary of $50 a week, was the man who really lured him.

"I am entirely innocent of any wrongdoing and will be able to prove true to the satisfaction of the jury," he said.

THURSDAY BEFORE THE BANK was closed to the vault to put away a $200 bond. The key to the bond section of the vault hangs on a hook in the vault. I got the key and started to open the bond section. I couldn't open it. I then discovered that the key was not the right one for that section.

"Then investigation I found the key belonged to Marcino. It was in key to his own private section of the vault."

"I suspected nothing, but realized I would have to get the right key in order to put the bond away properly. I imagined then that Marcino had innocently switched keys. I knew he was interested in the National Life Insurance Company at that time, so I sent a wire to him there."

BECAME RESPECTFUL.

"I waited until the next day for an answer. None came, so I called up on the long distance phone. I wouldn't get him on the phone. Even then I wasn't suspicious that any thing was wrong."

things wrong had occurred. But I decided to run over to Buffalo to find out what was happening.

"I arrived in Buffalo on Saturday and found the insurance company had been closed by the State Insurance Commission. I made inquiries and learned Marcino had come to Chicago."

"By this time I was concerned, and although I didn't suspect that the bank had been looted, I felt it was up to me to find out what was wrong."

"When I arrived in Chicago I immediately went to the home of Abraham Goldman, Marcino's father-in-law. He told me he hadn't seen him. We both began a search for him."

"Meanwhile, I found the bank had been closed and that they were looking for me. I immediately went to the Department of Justice and gave myself up. Before I did that—the

Own YOUR SHARE of the Earth

A Man Who Can Say "I Live in My House" COUNTS

Copyright, 1922, Ray Cummings

There are two real things in this life as we fly through space around the sun. They are THE GROUND beneath your feet, and YOU as you stand upon it.

Man and the earth are in fact the same, for the Bible tells you:

And the Lord formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.

Each of us owns "the dust" of which his body is made. But that isn't ENOUGH. Every man of energy should determine and plan to own also a piece of the earth itself, and a HOME UPON IT.

There is nothing better for the individual or for the nation than HOME OWNERSHIP.

The man that owns a piece of his native land is by that ownership made a better citizen of that native land.

And he is a good DEFENDER of his native land.

Twelve thousand soldiers that Charles the Twelfth took with him from Sweden when he marched through Russia against the extraordinary conquests were, EVERY MAN OF THEM, owners of their own home and land in Sweden. And every man of them would fight to the death to get back to that land.

The French soldiers that fought at Verdun, declaring "They shall not pass," and making that declaration good, were owners of the soil of France, or sons of men and women that owned that soil.

France, a comparatively small nation, has MORE THAN SIX MILLION DIFFERENT OWNERS OF FRENCH SOIL. And that is the great strength of France.

She can raise an army of men, actual owners of France itself.

To own your own home, the roof above you, the walls around you, the ground beneath you, means independence.

And independence is the best, strongest and most encouraging feeling that a man can have in his heart.

To go FROM YOUR OWN HOME in the morning, and return to YOUR OWN HOME at night, and know as you work that you are paying for it, or that you are laying aside part of your earnings to provide for it, TO ENDOW IT after it is paid for, is most satisfactory and stimulating knowledge.

First to get the home, then to save that it may be made safe for your children and your wife, that is the first important work of a man worth while.

Real work begins with OWNERSHIP, consists in providing, first, for those that depend upon you, and that have a right to look to you.

After that comes the work done for the world outside.

A philosophical Pullman car porter said, "The man that lives in a dress suit don't amount to much."

That is a philosophical truth, applying to all great and small.

The man that amounts to something is the man that lives in a house that he owns. He is SOMEbody. He has that which can't be taken away from him by the accident of bad management or the dishonesty of bad managers.

In his own home a man is HIS OWN BOARD OF DIRECTORS. He knows what he has, he can decide what he will do with it.

Apart from the character value of home ownership, there are many other values. There is the increasing value of the property purchased. Everything in the United States steadily grows in value, and every foot of the United States is destined to be worth more in the future than it is worth now.

There are many good investments, but none better than an investment in THE FUTURE OF THE UNITED STATES. And that future is in THE REAL ESTATE OF THE UNITED STATES.

Own your own home, read and study the advertisements. Examine the various properties, CAREFULLY, THOUGHTFULLY.

Know all about the house and about the real estate that interests you before you purchase it. Proceed carefully. Do not go beyond your means. BUT OWN YOUR OWN HOME. "A man's home is his castle." That's an old saying, but it does not apply except to a man that OWNS his house.

When HE owns the house HE is the ruler. No landlord to bother him, no moving date to worry about.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME. Plan and start now. Go house-hunting and land-hunting tomorrow.

Industrial Spies' Methods Evil

Mr. Charles O. Power of the Boston American staff reports that social pest, known as the industrial spy, is working overtime in Fall River, making as much trouble as he can for both employer and employee during the pendency of negotiations concerning wages and conditions of labor.

What earthly good employers ever found in these creatures we cannot understand. Their testimony is never worth anything. They are nearly always agents provocateurs. Their methods are the methods of the Russian government during the dark ages of Czarism. Their profit is always to make war rather than to make peace; to pour oil not on troubled waters, but on sparks and tinder.

Question of Women on Our Juries

The legislative committee has refused to recommend that women be allowed to sit on juries.

Considering it as a duty, we see no reason why women should not be compelled, now that we have the ballot, to bear that burden of citizenship as well as the men.

Should not have all the privileges in a community that the men have. Certain exemptions might be made out of consideration for the peculiar position women occupy in the social scheme. But with those exceptions, we see no reason why the women should not be allowed and compelled to serve on juries.

WAR SLOGAN ANNOYING FARMERS

HELENA, Mont., March 28.—

Farmers along Powder River, in southeastern Montana, are protesting against the world famous cry, "Powder River, Let 'Er Buck!"

It is contended that this cry is not expressive of the present-day Powder River section, and it is detrimental to its reputation as an agricultural region.

When the boys of the Ninety-first National Army Division went over the top in the Meuse-Artois offensive on the Rhine, they "Let 'Er Buck!" was heard from one end of the Ninety-first's frontage to the other. It seemed an expression of such dash and reckless bravery that the cry was soon taken up by other military organizations.

Youth's Ambition

Editor Boston American:

A large majority of young men, especially those with responsibilities, have a smoldering ambition, and desire to rise in this world, and all that is lacking is the proper incentive. Won't you show them the road that leads to the door of opportunity, and watch them break in? Good sound ideas lie dormant in the brains of many factory workers whose spare time is limited. So much so that proper development is lacking, therefore, no benefit is derived from them by anyone.

Progress demands new ideas, which are born with the new generation, but what good are they in an inviolable form?

Is there any subject that would form a more interesting editorial in your worthy paper than the progress of the American youth?

SAMUEL I. GOLDMAN,

No. 421 Manchester street, Manchester, N. H.

Woman's Opinion

Editor Boston American:

I was just reading the Pappas case in your paper. I would like to see capital punishment abolished forever, as we live in a civilized land. Why do we kill when one of the Ten Commandments forbids it? MISS J. R. Buzzards Bay.

Questions Right

Editor Boston American:

Can't there be something done to put an end to legal murder? What right has the State to commit the same crime that it takes the life of a (well-known) murderer? JAMES HOWELL, Newport, N. H.

WORDS FROM THE LIPS OF WISE MEN

As the calling dignifies the man, so the man with more advances his calling.

You may keep your beauty and your youth unless you destroy them yourself, or encourage them to decay with you, by using them ill.

Nothing is more difficult than absolute intimacy between children and parents, even when there is much love between them, for on that one side respect discourages confidence, and on the other the child, often erroneous, of the superiority of age, prevents parents from taking seriously enough the child's feelings, which are often just as interesting as those of grown-up persons, and almost always more sincere.

White Puppy

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a little white puppy about seven months old that I would gladly give B. H. if she would care for it. Of course, it is not a bull, but the dog is very pretty and will not grow big. I am anxious to see her get a good home.

ED. NOTE—She will be put in touch with you. I think that she will be overjoyed to get the dog, but if she should not for any reason, would you please let us know, as there are many other little boys and girls who want dogs.

Gloves and Slippers

Editor Helping Hand:

I have the following articles to give away: One pair of boy's leggings, several pairs of boy's gloves, gloves for lady, one 7 1/2 slippers, size 7; a few wash shirts for boys four or five. Also one pair of boy's black straw hat for boy three or four, and black hat for girl eight or nine. Kindly send some name from North Cambridge. If possible.

ED. NOTE—The list is not arranged by initials, as we wish to have to hold your hand offer for replies. The other address you only will be sent you.

For Tall Woman

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a black serge dress and two black broadcloth suits, new models, but plain and well-tailored, suitable for a tall woman of forty-eight-inch bust measure. I am gladly sent to anyone who can use them.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with M. A.

BERNHARDT YIELDS THE STAGE TO THE MASTER

By Herbert Kaufman

BERNHARDT finally retires from the stage. The world loses a supreme artist and retains an immortal inspiration.

Here was a human Verden flaunting her own "On No Passes" in the face of death and time. Phenix-like, she perished in flaming determination.

Shocked by amputation and beset by age, she defied the cues of nature and showed how an unquenching soul can conquer circumstances.

Irrving, originally an inconsequential mummer, pieced out his slender birthright with study and diligence.

Wagner, flouted by the critics, poured his very soul essence through his finger-tips and created himself a master. His career was accouched in an agony of practice and revision.

Verdi began as an obscure organist. "Nothing for nothing is given here."

These and all the trait-vorited brood of fame came up because they would not be drowned.

We may not spare ourselves and spare eternity.

The Magic of One Silver Sentence

A boy of twelve, trifling about his uncle's studio at Washington, once watched Bernhardt modelling in clay. To his notion she was a skinny, ugly woman with frizzy hair, pallid face, but incredibly eloquent hands.

He does not remember the kind of she uttered or recall another aspect of that now precious experience.

But he shall never forget how, years after, a helmsman with tight-strapped figure and heavy limbs, stepped from the wings and in a single silver sentence became and for three hours remained a fragile A'iglon. That for personal reminiscence.

Napoleon lay at St. Helena, but died at the head of his troops murmuring "Tete d'Armees"—"head of the army."

Bernhardt's death chamber was the boudoir of Camille. It was not she, but the lady of the Camellias that took the curtain.

All who play commanding parts must act through to the end.

Their Good Fairies Have Deserted Them

George Henry Hubert Lascelles, seign of Kings and belted knights, fought his lines and played a victim part when the Archbishop of Kent splashed him at the baptismal font.

George Henry Hubert was simply outraged and screamed his furious opinion regarding the matter.

No man living can estimate what role the years will be hanging around Princes' cradles of late.

Francis Joseph's infantile are beggar boys in Spain, the grandsons at Herr Hohenoller are unprivileged citizens of a bankrupt republic. Ogres slew the Czarovich and the poor little son of heaven hasn't the faintest idea how he'll fare from day to day.

Royal numbers don't seem destined to play their parts through to the end.

"The Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady"

Not if Luigi Quintilliano and his ilk have their say way. Quintilliano, arrested at Waterbury for seditious utterances, declares that real freedom shall never be attained until the red flag flies over the Statue of Liberty as well as the last palace.

He belongs to another group fated to miss their expectations.

Justice Morshausen recommends the abolition of divorce. Countering popular belief, his judgeship asserts that the poor have as many scandals as the rich, but don't get as much publicity.

He excommunicates present loose morals and lightly held marriage vows.

But makes no comment on the brutal greed that inspires an already rich man to smother his own baby's distinguished name in a nauseous will fight. The bad fairies found Peter Cooper Hewitt's child, too.

The Horatians Hold the Bridge

The administration's Senate majority received a mortal blow with the death of Nicholson of Colorado.

Horatians, declares that real freedom shall never be attained until the red flag flies over the Statue of Liberty as well as the last palace.

If the Democrats maintain a solid front the next session of Congress must consult insurgent opinion or mark time. A minority state of mind is as powerful as forty-eight States under such conditions.

General Dawes Left Too Soon

Washington has more troubles. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, on the strength of an unverified statement, declares that England has increased the range of her battleship gun.

Congress appropriates six and a half million dollars to correspondingly rectify the efficiency of our fleets. Secretary Hughes writes a note of protest and Great Britain confutes his claims.

Mr. Hughes also learns that our oil men have not been denied access to Barmah, a matter on which Secretary Fall went off on his knees.

General Dawes left town too soon. There's more work at the capital for his practical and methodic intelligence.

Insecurity in private business is bad enough, but a government with a billion-dollar pocket to pay for facts, with cables, Ambassadors, military and naval attaches to secure and confirm information, hasn't a leg to stand on when the nation demands an accounting for indefensible blunders.

Prosperity Is Making the Grade

General Motors is also a competent reorganizer. The corporation announced a 100 per cent. increase in output. Proof that there's plenty of money in prosperity's pocket. Depression takes Shank's mare, not cars.

A single New York department store sold $49,000,000 worth of goods in the past twelve months, and is still building. Its balance sheet shows a gain of 38 per cent. Retail is doing very well in the long run.

The Advance Rumely Company, agricultural implement makers, sold $1,864,000 in 1921 and had a $180,000 profit for the next year. Farmers are buying, too.

Labor finds more jobs than skilled hands can hold, mills are running at full capacity, and the country is still being built and that nothing but good business to sight.

Even France is making the grade. Her foreign trade exceeds 1913 shipments. If it keeps up, that clip M. Polaire will have greater difficulty than ever in explaining why he doesn't begin to say a little about accuracy.
